

Today On Susan Street

Here's my mailbox, painted by the untrained, as of yet unfamous arteest, Me, er myself! Hehehe!! That wonderful man, working on said mailbox is my husband, whom I feel so-so lucky to have found. He knows my secrets, my downfalls, my moods, and yet he still loves me! (not a great picture of him, the subject was the mailbox!) After doing the mailbox we got three five gallon buckets of fresh corn from our garden! It made three quarts of whole kernel corn, and 6 bags of corn that we froze on the cob for dinners, plus we gave away four cobs, and ate another seven with our dinner! Diane learned to shuck corn tonight! And she watched me blanch, and get the corn ready for Clyde to cut the corn off the cob for me! I also froze four quarts of zucchini tonight!! That was after making bread and muffins this morning. It was a good day!! I like days like today!!! More pics: Corn from our garden and onto our dinner table. (notice I'm baking so much now I buy baking powder in the five pound container, whew!!)
